Metropolitan Andrey Sheptytsky Institute of Eastern Christian Studies

Saint Paul University in Ottawa is proud to be the home of the Metropolitan Andrey Sheptytsky Institute of Eastern Christian Studies. This Institute is named after the primate of the Ukrainian Catholic Church, Andrey Sheptytsky (1865-1944), who dedicated his life to the furthering of East-West understanding and rapprochement between the Orthodox and Catholic Churches. The Sheptytsky Institute was founded in 1986 at Catholic Theological Union in Chicago. In September 1990 the Institute moved to Ottawa, Canada, where it is one of the academic units of Saint Paul University's Faculty of Theology.

Through Saint Paul University's Faculty of Theology, the Sheptytsky Institute offers undergraduate and graduate university degree programs in Eastern Christian Studies. At the undergraduate level: a Civil (120 credit) and Ecclesiastical (90 credit) Baccalaureate, as well as a 24-credit Certificate in Eastern Christian Studies. The graduate concentration in Eastern Christian Studies includes both ecclesiastical degree programs for the licentiate (L.Th.) and doctorate (D.Th.), as well as civil degree programs for the M.A.(Th.) and Ph.D.(Th.). Four areas of study are offered: Spirituality-Doctrine, Liturgical Studies, Historical Studies in Eastern Christianity, Ecumenism and Eastern Christianity.

The Institute organizes public lectures on various aspects of the life of the Eastern Churches, offers continuing education programs for clergy and is involved in community outreach in several dioceses in North America and Ukraine, produces audio-video and printed materials for theological education in the Eastern tradition, and provides consultative services for dioceses, school boards, parishes and others in need of expert advice. The work of the Sheptytsky Institute is made possible by an endowment from the Metropolitan Andrey Sheptytsky Institute Foundation, which operates under the moral and financial patronage of the Ukrainian Catholic Bishops of Canada.
