

Whoever gives thought
to the word will discover good.

Proverbs 16:20

8

THE JOURNAL LOGOS
AND OTHER INSTITUTE
PUBLICATIONS AND MEDIA

Above: Dr. Adam DeVille

Left: In 1995, in St. Peter's Basilica, Fr. Andriy Chirovsky presents the then Cardinal Ratzinger with a copy of Logos. It was obviously in high demand. A cleric next to the Cardinal immediately grabbed it.

“Publish or perish” usually is taken to mean that if a scholar doesn’t write, he or she won’t be hired or promoted. But it also means something more important: No one, including academics, should be allowed to stop learning. Their minds, too, perish when they are not compelled to do research and articulate their thought. Academic publications, then, exist – among other things – to ensure that professors continue to do their “homework.”

The Sheptytsky Institute of Eastern Christian Studies is particularly proud of the following: in the entire world today – including Ukraine – the only peer-reviewed theological journal published under the auspices of a Ukrainian Greco-Catholic institution is Logos: A Journal of Eastern Christian Studies. The journal owes its vitality to Dr. Adam DeVille, its remarkable editor. Prominent authors from institutions the world over are happy to submit their articles to Logos, knowing that they will be edited professionally and published quickly.

The Institute is proud of its other publications as well, and hopes to expand its digital and multi-media resources in the future.

The following renowned scholars, some already deceased, have served on the international advisory board of Logos. The Sheptytsky Institute gratefully acknowledges their invaluable service.

- ♦ +Jaroslav Pelikan (Yale)
- ♦ +Ihor Ševčenko (Harvard)
- ♦ +Jean-Marie Tillard, OP
(Collège Dominicain, Ottawa)